Rex Beach's great American romance, "The Spoilers," indicates that fiction may have as high or higher aim than fact, for in addition to telling a gripping and absorbing story, he has reflected certain phases of civilization's advance that will never come again. Undoubtedly this western world has experienced the last of the great gold rushes. These picturesque and frenzied pilgrimages that commenced with the Spanish invasion were continued with the journey of the Argonauts over the great plains and the mountains of our west, in the days of '49; and concluded with the tollsome rush to the Klondike, or the sailing over seas to the Arctic shores of Nome. These were potentially and of Nome. These were potentially and picturesque periods in the big advance that made a conquest of the unknown to gratify men's never-ending thirst to defend their cause before the interstate commission.

In some scenes of the play hundreds of people were employed, and the landing at Nome is as re-markable for its showing of types as the famed bridge "Constantinople," over which moves the panorama of nations. In this scene moves the Alleutans and the Eskimos (the abor-terless); then there are singury invadigines); then there are sinewy invaders from far Australia, bronzed Africanders who deserted the fever belt for the new gold fields, and all perfor the new gold fields, and all pervasive Americans, who give the punch of power to all the proceedings. Halton Powell, Inc., foremost producer of musical plays for vaudeville, announces the early appearance at the Novelty theatre of Mr. Hal Johnson in a gorgeous scenic production of the latest musical success "The Little Modiste."

In "The Little Modiste" the author has provided Johnson with a part that fits him like the proverbial glove, but in so doing he has not failed to realize that it takes more than one clever artist to give a satisfactory evening's entertainment, and as a consequence has drawn several other excellent types, and Mr. Halton Powell, the producing manager, has secured a cast of well known musical comedy favorites to characterise the same.

The prettiest bunch of singing and dancing girls and the biggest scente production ever seen in vaudeville are other alluring promises.

An engagement of three nights and usual matiness open next Thursday. In "The Little Modiste" the William Farnum in "Samson" together with "Gertie," a comedy of rich character, will be shown at the Iris today and tonight only. The Iris has had some very fine entertainments but this show overtops them all. Monday until Thursday the Iris will present Mary Pickford, "America's Sweetheart," and the world's foremost film actress. She gladdens the heart and thrills the soul in her latest characterisation, "Cinderella." Mary Pickford as "Cinderella." Mary Pickford as "Cinderella." is charm, grace and tenderness personified, and immortalised in a screen production of rare art and appeal. In the film version there is more than the impersonal value of the character of the original and world famous story. "Cinderella" walks and breathes upon the screen as though it were a bewitching, dazzling being, incarnated by memory and idealized by the tender recollections of childhood.

New Year's afternoon and evening in New Year's afternoon and evening in Topeka. The little actress with the name of mystery is still good and she had some fairly good assistance, but was awfully short handed. About the only interest left to the so-called musical play is the songs, "Forty-five Minutes, etc.," "So Long, Mary" and "Mary Is a Grand Old Name," and Corinne herself.

"Mary Is a Grand Old Name," and Corinne herself.

Old-timers in Topeka remember her as the cute little girl who played an adaptation of "Cinderella" at the old "Tabernacle," southwest corner of Seventh and Van Buren, somewhere within that period bounded by 30 and 35 years ago. She was then 13 years of age, the company was managed by her mother and the title of the organization was "Little Corinne's Merrymakers." So it may be gathered that Corinne is no longer in the chicken class, but she is still a clever entertainer. Something like seventeen years ago she landed in Topeka with a melange called "Monte Cristo, Jr.," which didn't last long, but her long run has been with the "Fortyfive Minutes," which, like the wonderful one-hoss shay, continues to run after it is completely worn out. Can You Explain This?

Can You Explain This?

Can any reader, asks a writer in the January Strand, verify and explain the following, brought to my notice recently? Deal out four bridge hands, purposely making a misdeal (i. e., two cards to one hand). Pick up the hands, shuffle to any extent, and then redeal—properly this time. It will be found, in nine cases out of ten, that one of the hands contains either a singleton (one card of a suit) or lacks a suit altogether. I have 'ried this repeatedly, ard nearly always with the same result.

A GOOD START

TET A GOOD START is a motto which is often heard in many lines of human activity. At the beginning of a New Year we frequently hear it. It is a sensible admonition. It is an easy matter to start the New Year

There are spiritual forces within a man which strive for expression. The deeper things in a man go out to the deeper things which are beyond him. Religion gives an outlet to man's spiritual powers. Religion makes possible the union of the human and the divine. For the sake of both the man and the world religion should be given its proper place in all life.

In the years past you have forgotten these truths. These things are brought to your remembrance today. Do not shut your heart away from the sunshine. Religion is as sunshine. Religion is as sunshine to the soul.

Give God recognition and "Get a good start" for 1915. The Third of January is the First Sunday of the Year. Begin the year right and Go to Church.

Go to Church Tomorrow!
